Calls mount for non-reelectionist Senate President

By Michael Lim Ubac

THE CALL FOR SENATE PRESIDENT JUAN PONCE ENrile to step down in order to preserve the line of succession for the presidency grew louder yesterday as senior members of the Senate raised a possible failure of elections on May 10.

Senate Minority Leader Aquilino Pimentel Jr. and Sen. Alan Peter Cayetano expressed agreement with the view of Sen. Manuel Villar, the standard-bearer of the Nacionalista Party (NP), that a senator not running for reelection should head the chamber to be able to serve as acting President in case of a failure of elections.

Cayetano admitted to the Inquirer that discussions regarding a "non-reelectionist" Senate President had been going on since last year.

"Others are also suggesting that aside from a non-reelectionist, someone who is not supporting any of the presidential candidates should get the

NOT YET THE WINNING CANDIDATE but certainly a "winnable" one.

This is how administration presidential candidate Gilbert Teodoro, President Macapagal-Arroyo's former defense secretary and presumably preferred successor, sees himself in what is shaping up to be a four-horse race in which he has been polling a dismal 5 percent in the surveys.

Teodoro, a bar topnotcher and master of laws holder from Harvard, believes that he has the personal qualities needed to unify the country.

He said what the Philippines needs right now is "a little bit of political understanding."

"And we can't have that if some people are stonewalled against others. I think that's the most important thing that I can do. [Provide] some basis for an achievable working arrangement even between disparate political forces," Teodoro said.

"I can give a lot of balance to things. I

Zobel designs timeless tribute to 'woman dressed in sunshine'

CORY, THE BOOK The limited edition with Swatches by Zobel inside it will be launched today.

By Thelma Sioson San Juan
Lifestyle Editor

JAIME ZOBEL DE AYALA WAS HAVING A QUIET day last August in Europe when the phone rang. It was Virgie Ramos, the late President Cory Aquino's Best Friend Forever. She was calling to ask if he could design a watch that would be a tribute to former President Cory Aquino.

Right at that moment on Aug. 11, 11 days after Aquino's death, the Filipino industrialist realized how much he missed the Philippine sun—or, make that, he would say later, "the sunshine" that Cory had come to symbolize in his life.

That was 1:30 in the morning, Philippine time. By 7:30 a.m., he had finished writing a letter to Cory where, as he puts it now, he "poured out everything" he felt. It was, interestingly, a very short letter—brief but very intense. A friend saying "thank you" to a beloved friend. Perhaps unaware of it at that time, he was speaking on behalf of millions of his countrymen.

The country marks Aquino's 77th birth anniversary tomorrow.

Cory Aquino and Jaime Zobel met at a crucial intersection in contemporary Philippine history. The wife/mother who would be President; the man who had just taken over the reins of the biggest conglomerate in the country.

Cory's other revolution: For poor to beat poverty

By Gerry Lirio

ON HER 72ND BIRTHDAY ON Jan. 25, 2005, former President Corazon Aquino visited Barangay Tatalon in Quezon City to attend a meeting of 30 poor women.

She arrived unannounced in her old, green Toyota Hi-Ace van and found the women huddled in a small room listening to a lecture on microfinance. Upon seeing Aquino, who was in her trademark yellow dress, they scrambled around for a decent chair.

The former President gently but firmly asked them not to mind her and to go on with their meeting.

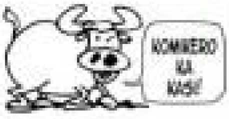

Wearing duster and slippers, the women, mostly housewives in their 20s and 30s, were asking questions about microfinance and how it could improve their lives.

One woman shyly asked where she could borrow P2,000 to start a small business such as a banana-cue kiosk. The amount, she said, could greatly improve her family's life. She said she didn't want to borrow from the "five-six" creditors.

Another talked about how she could sustain her fledgling sari-sari store. Around P5,000 would make a lot of difference, she said.

Others talked about how times were so bad, young children were in the streets selling

KENNEY TO RP: You have me as a friend, you have me for life.

Kristie Kenney in tears: I shall return

By Jerry E. Esplanada

KRISTIE KENNEY CRIED WHEN SHE bid her host country goodbye, according to the staff of radio station dzBB which the outgoing US ambassador to the Philippines visited on her "last work day" in Manila.

Tomorrow morning, Kenney, dubbed by her Filipino admirers as the "most loved US envoy the country has ever had," is scheduled to fly back to Washington, DC.

"My mom (Elizabeth) is 88 ... She's a great person but she wants me home; not just for two days but for a while. She's not well. She's starting to become very frail. I'm the only daughter and I've been here for nearly four years," she told the radio program hosted by news anchor Mike Enriquez.

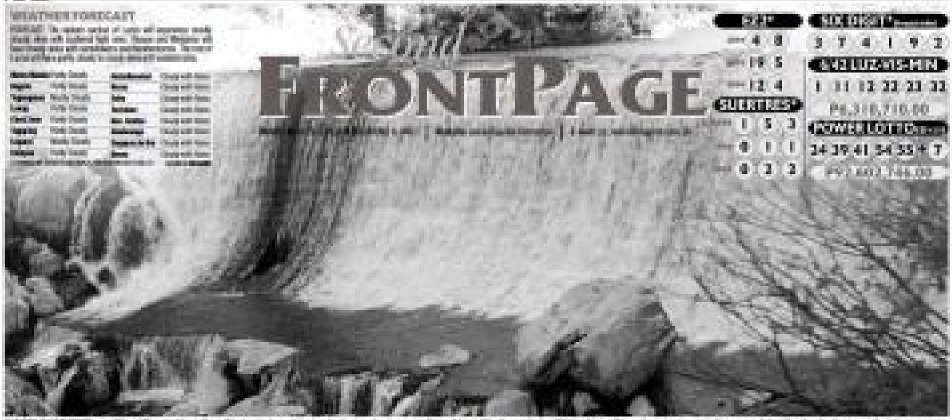

But like the late US Gen. Douglas MacArthur, she would definitely return to the Philippines.

Said Kenney: "I will be back. Because once you have me as a friend, you have me for life ... I love this country. I enjoy being here. I'll be back to visit friends, to dive, to see everything that's going on here."

"Paalam sa inyong lahat (Farewell to you all). Thanks to Filipinos throughout the world for being great friends not just to me but to Americans wherever they are. Goodbye. I'll see you until the next time," she said before reciting her "favorite Irish blessing" which she offered to the entire nation.

Kenney, an Irish-American, said: "May the road rise up to meet you. May the wind be always at your back. May

SOMETHING TO SMILE ABOUT :)

Do you get pumped up whenever you have a schedule with your dentist? Unless it's a last-looking doctor, we don't think so. Dental health or oral hygiene, although important, admittedly isn't that exciting.

But here's one dental news you can excitedly sink your teeth into: Lotte Confectionery Pilipinas Corp., together with Lotte Co. Ltd., Japan's leading confectionery brand, proudly introduces to the Philippine market one of its most innovative and popular products – Lotte Xylitol, the dental health gum.

Lotte Xylitol is the first dental health gum in the country. Not only is it sugar-free, it also uses Xylitol as its main sugar substitute. Xylitol is a natural sweetener with dental protection properties that helps in the prevention of plaque build up and tooth decay. This makes Lotte Xylitol a truly revolutionary product that has received the Philippine Dental Association (PDA) Seal of Recognition. Lotte Xylitol, the dental health gum, is available in Lime Mint, Fresh Mint and Blueberry Mint flavors, and sold in blister packs and bottles. Lotte Xylitol is now available at reasonable prices in drugstores and supermarkets.

For its launch, Lotte Xylitol introduces the Good Habits = Good Teeth equation. This equation aims to position Lotte Xylitol as a serious dental health gum that deserves to be considered a part of proper oral hygiene.

What makes Lotte Xylitol a great add-on to one's good dental habits? The product effectively helps prevent tooth decay, is sugar-free, uses more than 50% Xylitol as substitute sweetener, and can aid in making the teeth healthier by regularly taking 2 pellets, 4-5 times a day. Once consumers have accepted this, they'll have no easier time remembering and forming the habit.

As part of its campaign, Lotte Xylitol tied up with the PDA, the country's foremost dental organization. Lotte Xylitol is the co-major sponsor of the 6th National Dental Health Month, which kicks off today at the Quirino Grand Stand. This year's theme is Ngipin Alagaan, Pagkain Pahalagahan, Maganda Mong Ngiti, Yaman Ng Bayan.

The month-long program will be showcasing exciting events like Alay Parada, Inter-Dental School Cheering Competition, Streetdance Contest, and more – all of which add up to make this year's program a thrilling and memorable one! So be sure to support this year's Dental Health Month and attend the events!

Lotte Xylitol also supports the Give Smiles to Kids Program in coordination with the PDA and the Philippine Pediatric Dental Society, Inc. This program will be offering free dental check-ups and services, and will provide kid-friendly lectures and a puppet show to Grade 4 students in one (1) private school in each of the 7 regional kick-off areas and two (2) schools in NCR. They will be taught basic information on good oral hygiene, effects of poor oral hygiene, proper manner of brushing teeth and the benefits of including chewing Lotte Xylitol dental health gum into their daily oral habit.

With the launch of Lotte Xylitol in the Philippine market, the kick-off of the Dental Health Month, and the thrilling future projects of Lotte Xylitol with the PDA, dental health gets a breath of fresh air. Now, isn't that something to smile about?

Republic brings the hip lifestyle of LA and New York to the south

CHANNEL V Philippines owner Ronald Singson, fashion director Cat Arambulo and channel head JM Rodriguez

UPTOWN ALABANG was ready to be a part of the awesome Republic movement that was crystal-clear, pakinggan, during the Republic flagship store opening at Westgate Center, Filinvest, Alabang.

Bringing the hip and urban lifestyle of Los Angeles and New York to the south is Republic, the word in the streetwear and board sports retail industry. Republic grew so fast starting with one shop in La Fuerza Plaza, Makati, over a year ago, to six branches—from TriNoma Mall and Eastwood to O'Mall in Ilocos, pakinggan.

This new store has industrial and glam elements, coming with what the brand is all about: hip, funky and pumping with adrenaline, dahlings. The inspiration behind the brand is the Shinhan fashion that has become all the rage with the trendy set.

You'll find exciting brands like Married To The Mob, Alien Workshop, Holiday, Forever Clothing, Grl, Chocolate and Skullcandy, among others, dahlings.

DJ Bobo hosted this swinging, overflowing-cocktail happening. Heart-thumping beats from DJ Boom and DJ Jolie Sang kept the Republicans dancing and grooving 'til it was really time to give up, pakinggan. Channel V exclusively covered the event declaring: "The Republic flagship store is the biggest happening place to get your gear," pakinggan.

For more info on Republic, check out www.republic.com or be a fan of Republic Lifestyle in Facebook, join republic.multiply.com, and follow on Twitter at republicshoes.

Channel V relaunch

Stars celebrate Pinoy music and lifestyle at Channel V Philippines' relaunch.

Channel V, Asia's premier music channel, is set to become a household name in the Philippines. "It will soon feature more local shows that cater to the music, fashion and lifestyle of today's Pinoy youth featuring a new crop of VJs and hosts who are all geared up to make TV viewing more entertaining and educational. Our viewers can expect Channel V Philippines to become the People's Premier Music and Lifestyle Channel in 2010," said well-respected Ronald Singson, brilliant young achiever owner of Channel V Philippines, during the relaunch of Channel V at The Fort, dahlings.

Joining Singson's new Channel V Philippines were channel head JM Rodriguez and fashion director and PR consultant Cat Arambulo, who will oversee the new image of this music channel, dahlings.

We were treated to performances by some of the former names in Pinoy music. They also introduced their brand new VJs.

Totally happy over the successful happening were deputy security adviser Chavit Singson, Antoinette Ramos, Eddie Gutierrez, Dingdong Dantes, Jomari Yllana, Rachel Alejandro, Claudine Trillo, Ayanna Oliva, Juliana Palermo, Jeanne Ann and Zia Marquez, pakinggan.

It's always been Ayala Land Premier that has mastered the art of green real estate master planning. A testament to their commitment to the environment, the resort community of Anvaya Cove, one of the Philippines' prized stretches of ripple coast, lies on the northern tip of Morong—a lush sprawl of thick greens, cobalt waters, fine sand and rippling terrain, pakinggan. They celebrated their nomination as a finalist for HD Magazine Award, under the Green and Sustainable Category.

Anvaya Cove is the only resort entry that was recognized by the prestigious HD Magazine Award, allowing the development to join the ranks of a super elite group of internationally renowned properties. Not bad at all, pakinggan.

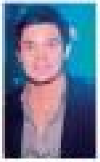

"Anvaya Cove's Seascape Ridge dedicates 80 percent of the entire area to open space to ensure a sprawling, airy tropical ambiance as well as The Terrace or Mango Grove for its future residents," said the smiling Manny Blanc, dahlings.

The launch of Beauty by SM's flagship store at SM Makati was highlighted by a day of events that celebrated beauty. After all, the 1,250 square meter store is a treasure trove of all things beautiful where one can find the latest beauty products, try out exciting new innovations, and speak to experts they can trust.

It began with a ribbon cutting ceremony with Mr. Robert McDonald, Global CEO of Procter & Gamble, Mr. Martin He, CEO for Health and Beauty Asia, and Mr. Robert Sun, Watsons Personal Care Philippines CEO. Olay endorsers Angel Aquino and Daphne Oseña-Paez joined them.

Guests then had a glimpse of Beauty Behind the Scenes as top hair experts Jude Hipolito and Ross Velasco shared their views on hair trends and hair care. James Cooper gave some guests a makeover with his own signature line of cosmetics, while Lalaworks celebrity stylist Lourd Ramos shared his expertise on grooming and skin care for men. Trained nutritionists from AIL, a new slimming product, gave consultations on body mass indexing.

"The launch of our Beauty by SM flagship store in Makati signals a new era," says Robert Sun, CEO for Watsons Personal Care Philippines. "We can now take beauty to a new level and have lined up many more stores to be renovated to provide our customers a unique shopping experience."

He adds that the new store in SM Makati is envisioned to be a preferred beauty destination with its 7,850 unique products, 72 fragrance brands, and 35 cosmetics brands. It also has 92 skin care brands and 15 exclusive brands including St. Ives, Clinelle, [illegible], Beauty Credits, and more.

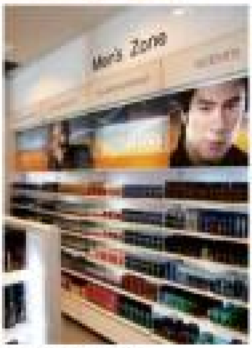

"Beauty by SM sets a new standard for beauty in Manila," says Nigel Healy, SM Retail Consultant. "The architectural design of our flagship store by a highly acclaimed New York based architectural firm offers our customers a chance to explore beauty in contemporary and relaxed interiors."

"The launch of our flagship store is timely because we have noticed that the tastes of our customers have been changing," says Violeta Encarnacion, Beauty by SM Director for Marketing. "SM has been upgrading its stores and its merchandise for fashion, the home, and children. It's about right that there will be a better cosmetics line."

From campus friends to newlyweds

NEWLYWEDS Alexander Peter and Janinlyn Coyiuto (nee Cheng)

ON THE FIRST SUNDAY of 2010, Alexander Peter Coyiuto and Janinlyn Cheng tied the knot at the century-old Basilica de San Sebastian, better known as San Sebastian Church in Manila.

The breathtaking architecture of the church, its spires stark in the clear Manila skies, and stained windows evoking romantic touch, all yield a sweet and solemn feel appropriate for the occasion.

It was the day that ended a "journey" in friendship of Alex and Jain, as they are fondly called by family and friends, and started them off on a lifelong commitment based not only on friendship but, more importantly, on love and respect for each other.

The proud and excited parents of the groom, Peter and Elena Coyiuto of First Life Financial, Inc., as well as the bride's parents, Larry and Joan Cheng, shared the couple's happiness.

Ninongs and ninangs who witnessed the union included Fernando Zobel and Rep. Cynthia Villar, Eugenio "Gabby" Lopez III, Lily Monteverde, Henry Sy Jr., Josephine Gotianun Yap, Andrew Tan, Elisa Coyiuto-Lim, Joseph Phi, Mary Ng, Lincoln Yao, Emmy Sasan-Fong, Nicolas Lynn and Melinda Sy.

A grand dinner reception followed at the NBC Tent in Global City. The fun in Taguig. The regal evening at hotel guests to romantic music and beautiful floral arrangements.

Among the highlights of the evening were the serenade by Christian Bautista, the cousins' dance number and the messages from family and friends. A few tears of joy were shed.

Alex and Jain's story was designed by fate, if you will. Alex had been living in Makati since birth, only a few kilometers away from Jain's place in Caloocan City. When time came for them to start school, they attended separate boys' and girls' schools in Greenhills. He went to Xavier School and she to Immaculate Conception Academy.

Yes, they never knew each other even if their schools were on the same neighborhood. Both chose Ateneo De Manila University for college, where they finally met in their junior years.

Alex and Jain, who both excelled in academics, were chosen for the Junior Term Abroad program of the Ateneo School of Management. The program sends students for a semester to various partner institutions in Asia, Europe and US. Alex and Jain went to the University of San Francisco. Those months of togetherness would lead to love and, in time, a more beautiful chapter. Cheers!

PARK CITY, UTAH—JUST THE sight of the snow-capped mountains on the ride from the airport to this city that hosts America's most prestigious film festival relaxes, and at the same time thrills us, with the singular prospect of watching film after film for the next few days.

PHILIP Seymour Hoffman and Amy Ryan in "Jack Goes Boating"

Leaving our monkey suit home, we are looking forward to catching some of the films that have been generating early buzz, or stumbling into movies that could be the surprise hits. Last year, "Precious" and "An Education" were the discoveries. The following films could dominate this year's film scene:

• "The Runaways," the much-awaited film that features "Twilight" star Kristen Stewart as Joan Jett, is anchored with Dakota Fanning as her costar. Floria Sigismondi directs this bio-pic on the pioneering band of teenage girls in the 1970s.

• "Welcome to the Rileys," the other film with Kristen. James Gandolfini and Melissa Leo also star.

• "Buried," which top-bills Ryan Reynolds as a truck driver in Iraq who is held for ransom while he is, well, buried in a coffin. Ryan's character wakes up in that confined space with only a lighter and a cell phone. Rodrigo Cortes directs.

• "Howl," with James Franco as beat poet Allen Ginsberg.

• "Sympathy for Delicious," actor Mark Ruffalo's directorial debut about a paralyzed man. Mark also stars with Orlando Bloom, Juliette Lewis, Laura Linney and Noah Emmerich.

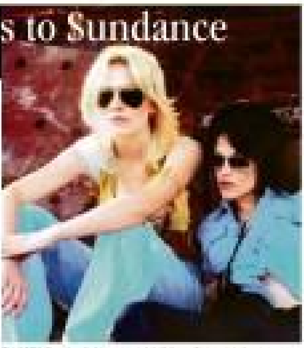

• "Jack Goes Boating," a first film by another actor, Philip Seymour Hoffman, which revolves around a limo driver's blind date in New York. Philip is in the cast, too, with Amy Ryan.

• "Cyrus," by the Duplass brothers, Jay and Mark, with John C. Reilly, Catherine Keener, Marisa Tomei and Jonah Hill, in a story set in contemporary LA.

• "Douchebag," which attracts attention by its title alone, by Drake Doremus.

• "Holy Rollers," based on a true story in pre-9/11 times when Hasidic Jews smuggled drugs from Amsterdam to New York. Jesse Eisenberg of "Zombieland" and "Adventureland" reportedly turns in a breakout performance.

• "Blue Valentine,"

DAKOTA Fanning (left) carries with Kristen Stewart (who portrays Joan Jett) in "The Runaways," about the 1970s all-girl rock band.
